THE NEW INSURANCE LAW .- The General Assembly has passed and sent to the Governor a bill amending and reenacting the first and second sections of the act passed in the year 1866 requiring a deposit of securities to be made by foreign insurance companies doing business in this State. It provides that no insurance company which has not been incorporated under the laws of Virginia shall carry on business in this Commonwealth without first obtaining a license to transact its business in the manner prescribed by law, and no such company shall receive such license until it shall have deposited with the Treasurer of the State bonds of the State of Virginia, or of public corporations guaranteed by the State, or of the United States, or of the cities of Richmond, Petersburg, Lynchburg, Norfolk, or Alexandria, or first mortgage railroad bonds of a railroad company chartered by this State, or bonds of individuals residents of this State, executed for money loaned by said company since the 3d day of Fobruary, 1866, and secured by deed of trust on real estate in this State worth double the value of such loan or debt together with the policies of insurance upon the property so mortgaged, approved by said Treasurer, or bonds of municipal corporations of this State, secured by deed of trust on real estate to an amount which shall be equal to five per cent, of the capital stock of the company depositing the same, such deposit being estimated at the market value thereof at the time such deposit is made: Provided, That in no case shall any company receive a license to do business in this State without first making a deposit of securities according to the provisions of this act, the cash value of which shall be at least $10,000, and no company shall be required to deposit such securities to an amount exceeding in cash value $50,000, &c., &c.-Rich. FIGHTING CASE. - In Henrico County Court on yesterday, the case of Ralph Evans, (colored.) for maliciously shooting Claiborne Randolph and two other gentlemen of African descent, all at the same shot, was called up. This "jury of his countrymen," after hearing the evidence of the arguments of counsel, adjudged him guilty of unlawful shooting, and ascertained his term of confinement in the penitentiary at one year. It seems from the evidences that the prisoner met the others, (his friends and neighbors,) and asked each one for a chew of tobacco. They told him they had none. He then commenced cursing them, and falling upon one of them, in the words of the witness "he struck me first on one side of the head and then the other, making me blind, and den he knocked me, and fastened his teeth in my cheek so tight that we had to prise his mouth open, and then he bit my other cheek in the same way." He was finally, however, dislodged, and went off, saying that he meant to shoot them. They paid no attention to his threat, but continued their journey slowly down the road. After proceeding some distance, (a mile or so,) they were very much surprised to hear the crack of a musket and find themselves all shot. The prisoner had hid behind a cedar, and waiting for them to get in a row, as one would watch for wild turkeys, fired away at the proper moment, and brought "them down, all up in a heap," as one of them said. Much of the testimony was very amusing, convulsing the court, jury, and spectators with laughter.— Richmond Dispatch.

Mr. Felix McDonald, a wild beast tamer, had a narrow escape from a frightful death at Louisville, Ky., a few days since. Heming's menagerie is "wintering" in Louisville, and several of the animals, including a pair of royal Bengal tigers, are quartered at a livery stable in the city. Such is the savage disposition of these animals that no one can approach them except Mr. M. He is in the habit of entering the den every day for the purpose of cleaning it, and of keeping the tigers under control. A few days since he entered the den as usual armed only with a heavy whip. As soon as he enters the door of the den is closed and locked. The moment the iron door closed upon Mr. McDonald, the largest of the animals, which is called Frank, without a single warning growl sprang upon Mr. M. with all the natural ferocity of the tiger in his native jungle. Fortunately Mr. M. was thoroughly acquainted with the disposition of the animal, and was on the alert. As the tiger dashed at him he stepped quickly aside, avoiding the onset, and reversing his whip, dealt the tiger a furious blow, momentarily stunning him. The tiger sprang at him again and again, but bewildered by the rapid blows of the daring man, rendered desperate by the terrible danger, he retreated to the corner, when, by the assistance of the men employed in the building, who came to the aid of Mr. McDonald with iron bars, he was en abled to entirely subdue the tiger. As it was, he narrowly escaped a horrible death.

VERNAL EQUINOCTIAL SEASON.—From the careening of the Earth upon its axis in its orbit round the Sun there are two months in the year, March and September, in which, in familiar terms, "the Sun crosses the line," or the equator. In September he crosses the line going south, and thence to the 20th of December his course across the sky is farther south of the line from day to day, and then he returns again northward and crosses over to our side of the line about the 20th of March. In this movement, north or south of the line, he carries with him a rainy season, strongly defined in the tropics and sensibly felt in these latitudes in our vernal and autumnal equinoctial gales and storms. For several days past the inhabitant, of the Earth north of the equator have more or less been visited by these vernal equinoctial rains in Europe and within the rainy districts of Asia, Northern Africa and North America. The 15th of this month (Wednesday last), for instance, was a day of clouds and rains and storms over most of the wide domain of the United States, and a day marked by a great and destructive storm over all the British islands and over a great part, no doubt, of the European Continent.—New York Herald.

E LEGANT HAIR adds a charm to the plainest face; but when faded, features before agreeable lose their comeliness, and the whole expression is that of advancing age. This being a fact, it is not surprising that even injurious articles should have been prepared to supply the millions who wish to avoid premature gray hair. Under these circumstances it will scarcely be wondered at that NATTANS' CRYSTAL DIS-COVERY should have met with such extraordinary success.

It is the only preparation furnishing a safe and reliable restorer for the hair; absolutely free from all poisonous and deleterious matter and without sediment, and thousands above thousands have availed themselves of it, not simply because it restores the color of the hair, but because it supplies nourishment. It feeds the roots of the hair, so that where decayed it becomes vigorous and healthy again. From all sections of the country orders and testimonials are received daily, speaking in the highest terms of its qualities as the only preparation that ever gave entire satisfaction. Those who have used CRYSTAL DISCOVERY will not use any thing else; but to those who have not tried this excellent article it is recommended that when they are again in want of something of the kind to give it a trial; you will be more than pleased; you will be delighted with it, and will never again be without it. Don't let your druggist, if he has not got CRYSTAL DISCOVERY persuade you to buy something else, or you will be disappointed; rather go where you can get it put up in large bottles, containing half as much more as any other in market and, consequently much the cheapest. Price one dollar. For sale by WAR-FIELD & HALL, and druggists generally. mar 8-tf
